The Joint Commission is proud to accredit nearly 15,000 healthcare organizations and certify and verify over 4,600 programs across the continuum of care in the United States.

Earning accreditation, certification or verification from The Joint Commission signifies many things, with none larger than a devotion to patient safety and quality of care. By earning our Gold Seal of Approval®, healthcare organizations and programs exemplify their commitment to using best practices to improve safety and quality for their patients, staff and community.

Through the accreditation, certification and verification process, organizations and programs undergo an objective evaluation process to measure, assess and improve performance. Our state-of-the-art standards focus on patient safety and quality of care to help reduce the risk of errors and allow for continuous improvement.
